

Bio

Flames of Foe is a Barcelona-based experimental rock trio known for their distinctive blend of crushing riffs and haunting melodies. Since debuting with two singles in 2017-2018, they've carved out a unique niche in the underground scene through their willingness to push boundaries.

The band demonstrated their experimental edge with a 2019 remix EP featuring international collaborations, followed by a well-received debut album in 2022 that showcased their signature mix of complex rhythms and melodic sensibility. They've built a solid live reputation across Spain, performing in Barcelona, Madrid, and other cities.

Their upcoming second album, recorded at Siete Barbas Estudio with producer Daniel Gil (a respected figure in Barcelona's indie circuit), promises to elevate their sound even further. The new release is positioned as a significant step forward in their evolution as experimental rock innovators.
